

September 11, 2006

Five years have passed since that unbelievable morning when the world watched on live television as New York's Twin Towers, the Pentagon, and a plane over Pennsylvania all crumbled in flames and thousands of innocent people perished.

Together we join our hearts with remembrance and honor for the sacrifices of the heroic first responders and the blameless citizens just going about their daily lives.

Those coordinated attacks of terror were violent assaults on the United States and the freedoms and values that are the fabric of our history and our future.

We must never forget and we must seek a stronger, safer, future for our citizens and the world.

Sheriff Charlie Ray Fox, Jr.